They're the perfect solution when many people are attending a meeting or teleconference, or when you need to connect a few people together for a time-sensitive communication. Conference calls work like a walkie-talkie. Each person connects their phone to the main conference line, and can talk to other participants. The person at the main phone can manage the conference by entering a passcode that locks out other users. You can join a conference by dialing the line, or you can add and join a conference using a web browser. You can also dial-in to listen to a conference on-the-go using a cell phone, tablet, or desktop. Conference calls are great for getting together with clients, discussing your idea, team meetings, town hall meetings, and so on.

KEYMACRO Description: - Conference Call management system is a free time saving phone system designed to manage phone conferences easily.
